C.P.R. Willing To Co-Operate With Culvert

Must be Assured That Other Interested Parties Will Do Their Part in Scheme.

Mayor Antrobus and his council were highly pleased with themselves this week when they received a letter from Superintendent E.R. Lamb, Lethbridge division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, that his company were prepared to do their share to help alleviate future danger of flood waters. The company will do this however only upon being assured that other interested parties will do their part in the scheme. As a result the council will now seek a conference with officials of McGillivray Creek & Coal Co. Ltd. at an early date.

Following the flood of May 11, which caused considerable damage to sections of west Coleman and Second street, the council sought a conference with C.P.R. officials and officials of the federal and provincial governments as well as the McGillivray Coal Co.

On July 22 they were successful in having C.P.R. officials and coal company officials meet them in conference. At this meeting the flood and its causes were fully discussed. The Tempest report, made following the flood of 1923, was dealt with. This report proposed that channels be dug in the vicinity of road allowance at mileage 92.5 also culverts under the mine track and C.P.R. track. According to Supt. Lamb this scheme appeared the best way out of the difficulty.

The C.P.R. are anxious to get the work started at the earliest possible moment and only await confirmation that other interested parties will do their part in the scheme. As a result the conference between the council and coal company officials is expected to be held shortly.

COLEMAN PIGEON SOCIETY

A young birds race was flown from Red Deer on Saturday, Aug. 22. The weather was unfavorable for racing, the atmosphere being heavy with smoke from forest fires.

New Street Light System Being Installed

Nine 500-Watt Lamps to be Placed on Main Street; 36 Lamps will Eventually be Installed Along Roadway from East to West Within Town.

Monday saw the start of work by electricians to change the old street lighting system to one that will rank among the best in the province, with the exception of those of the big cities.

On Monday one light had been installed at White Rose Service Station and resulted in grand illumination for that section of the street. On Tuesday units had been installed at the Motordrome and Coleman Cafe thereby giving those sections of main street much better illumination.

Nine units in all with 500-watt lamps will be installed on main street. The main street lights will be installed before the other twenty-seven units are installed. The latter will contain 300-watt lamps and will start close by Coleman Photo studio on the east and continue to the bottom of Carbonale hill on the west.

When the order was first placed it was estimated that the cost of the new system would reach very closely to $1500. Equipment was supplied by General Electric.

THEATRE NOTES

An exceptionally entertaining program has been lined up for The Palace theatre this week-end. The main feature concerns adventure in the south seas. Betty Grable has the leading role. Beautiful scenery, dances and songs make it very enjoyable. Persons having seen it last week-end at Bellevue recommend it to Coleman patrons. In addition one of the best March of Time Features in months, "When Air Raids Strike," will be shown. One never wears of this type of film and since everyone is war conscious it is both fascinating and educational to see how air raids are carried out by the Allied Nations.

"Blossoms In The Dust" will be shown at Cole's this week-end. The sterling actor Walter Pidgeon is in the starring role. It is a heavy drama feature. It concerns a mother who loses her husband and child and who then devotes herself to caring for other young children. For those persons who like heavy drama it is a picture well worth seeing.

SCHOOL AGAIN

Wednesday morning saw the Fall school term commence. Youngsters, grimly holding their parent's hand, were seen going to school for the first time and studying with intense interest all that went on around them.

The older students seemed to take the opening in their stride following the summer vacation.

There are twenty-one teachers on the staff, six of them being newly engaged.

"Miss Canada" To Sell War Savings Stamps On Saturday; Will Have Booth At Carnival

Twelve Girls Will Typify Miss Canada on Saturday Wearing Gala Uniforms; Sell on Street and at Bank.

Coleman will be in the forefront of other Pass towns this week-end when twelve young local girls, wearing gala uniforms supplied by the National War Finance Committee, and to be known as "Miss Canada" will appear on main street at 10 a.m. Saturday.

A group will stand at the bank while another will sell on main street. At 8 p.m. the girls will go to the arena where they will have a war savings booth. They are under the supervision of Mrs. H. Dafoc who has put a lot of work into the preparation of this campaign.

Mrs. Dafoc and her committee are also supervising the "Fifteen Minutes For Canada" Day which will take place Thursday, Sept. 3 from 3 to 3.15 p.m. Stamps will be supplied by the local War Finance Committee and each merchant has received instructions from the provincial Retail Merchants' Association asking him to co-operate with their local war

Finance committee in making the "15 Minutes For Canada" a success.

During the fifteen minutes no merchant will sell merchandise but will lend every effort to have customers buy war savings stamps. It is the hope of the War Savings Committee that the public will make it a point to visit the business section at this particular time and buy liberally of stamps. It presents a splendid opportunity of starting junior and little sister on a war savings form and encourage them to save until the form has sixteen stamps.

By having this "15 Minutes For Canada Day" the National War Finance committee hopes that all Canada will take this fifteen minutes to think of world events and the position of the Allied Nations in this grim war and just how badly Canada needs their 25c pieces in carrying out this war effort. Buy Stamps liberally for you know as every Canadian knows, you will get your money back with interest and besides you are helping build up a nest egg for a rainy day.

Cigarette Fund Notes

A number of cards were received from overseas soldiers this week. A letter was also received from Spr. Jasper Jones thanking both the Cigarette Fund executive and the public for their gifts of cigarettes.

Cards were received from Sgt. G. Kroesing, Pte. R. Burt, Sgt. L. Richards, Pte. Lt. Foss Boulton who remarked "everything fine here. . . they haven't laid a glove on me . . . yet"; Roach Cousins, and three from Pte. F. Cocciolone.

Cards were received from A. L. McLeod, Cpl. M. McMillan, John Hogan and G. Burtinik and letters from Archie Wragg and E. R. Kennedy.

Geo. Burtinik states he has met Dan Daly and Haluck and that both were fit and liking Britain very much.

A. Wragg's letter:

Dear Mr. Turner and members of the Coleman Legion:

I wish to thank you ever so much for the Sweet Caporal cigarettes just received. They are appreciated very much. I had a letter from Fred Guernard in which he asked me to let him know if I was getting cigs. from the Legion. I wrote and told him I had received some from the Overseas Welfare Fund but as yet none from the Legion, but I see on the return card enclosed with the cigs, that the Overseas Welfare Fund is the Legion, so if he says I am not receiving cigs. you can tell him it is O.K. now. This is the second carton now that I have received. Sure miss good old Coleman and all my friends but hope to be back as soon as this war is over.

Local Salvage Ships Two Lots of Tires

No More Scrap Paper Wanted; Rubber Critically Needed.

Tuesday evening saw officers of the local salvage committee load approximately 200 tires of all sizes onto a truck and take them to the Pass central salvage depot for shipment. Tonight another 200 or more will be shipped. In addition to the tires other rubber articles were shipped.

Chairman Frank Abousaffy has issued a call that no further scrap paper be sent to the local depot as national headquarters has ample on hand. A call will be sent out when further paper is needed.

What is most needed at the present time are old tires and tubes, hot water bottles or anything that is no further use but contains rubber. Canada is in vital need of rubber and will absorb all the rubber salvage that can be found. The local depot is located in the Sartoris building next to the Legion club.

Garden Raiders Should be Stopped

Parents Asked to Check Young Sons Should They Find Them Guilty

Garden raiders are at work again much to the anger and annoyance of local gardeners.

This week a gardener found his carrots strewn over the yard and in the back alley. Few of the carrots, had been eaten but lay on top of the ground bruised and broken. In addition other vegetables had been ruined by having their leaves trampled into the ground.

It required hard work and much time digging and planting the garden not to mention expense and also many weeks watering, weeding and cultivating to bring the plants into full growth. To have all this work completely destroyed in one night by thoughtless youths is enough to make anyone annoyed.

Should one or two carrots have been taken and the rest left to grow and care taken with other plants in order that they would not be destroyed the gardener would have said nothing.

All local gardeners would appreciate parents quizzing their children regarding their movements of the past few nights and if they find them guilty of raiding gardens point out the destruction they have wrought and the amount of work that has been useless by their thoughtless behavior.

APPRECIATED

Lesson To Be Learned

Education In Tolerance Necessary If Human Civilization Is To Survive

An object lesson was given in Chicago a few evenings ago of the kind of tolerance that must be fostered throughout the world if the world is to be free. At a forum sponsored by the Pastors' Institute of the Chicago Theological Seminary, a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and a Negro Methodist minister shared the platform to discuss "religion's role in combating intolerance."

Another Protestant denomination furnished the meeting place—the University Church of the Disciples of Christ. This was no gathering of wishy-washy men pretending that they did not have differences of fundamental conviction. The Rev. Austin C. Schmidt, S.J., Rabbi Samuel M. Blumenfeld and the Rev. DeWitt Turpeau, Jr., surrendered not a jot or tittle of their individual religious principles in collaborating to fight intolerance. But each knew that all men are brothers and justice is indivisible by race or creed.

That truth never needed learning so much as today. In a shrinking world that knits us and will knit us progressively closer to all regions of the globe, education in tolerance will be necessary for the very survival of human civilization. —Chicago Sun.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 30

JACOB SEEKS GOD'S HELP

Golden Text: God is our refuge and strength. A very present help in trouble. Psalm 46:1.

Lesson: Genesis 31—33.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 34:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Waiting at Mahanaim, Genesis 32:1-8. On his return journey to the land of his fathers, Jacob reached Esau's territory and named the spot where he tarried Mahanaim, which means, as the footnote of our Bible tells us, "Two Hosts, or Two Companies." "Then God's host, verse 2, refers to the angels spoken of in verse 1 as meeting Jacob. Jacob sent messengers ahead to acquaint Esau of his arrival. They returned with the startling news that Esau was himself on the way to meet Jacob and had four hundred men with him. Jacob was panic-stricken, and good reason had he to be so, for he naturally thought that Esau was coming to avenge the wrong he had suffered at his brother's hands 20 years before. Jacob was face to face with the consequences of his past.

Jacob was always resourceful, and now he divided the people, flocks, herds and camels into two companies, on the supposition that one company could escape while the other was sent the other. Then he turned to God for aid.

Jacob's Prayer, Genesis 32:9-12. In his prayer Jacob seems to acknowledge that his own cunning and resourcefulness are not sufficient, as he craves God's help in his emergency. He begins by invoking Jehovah as the God of his grandfather Abraham and his father Isaac, who had impelled him to return to his own land, and had pledged himself to take care of him. Then with fine humility he acknowledges God's goodness to him: "I am not worthy of the least of all the loving-kindness which thou hast showed unto thy servant," for he had left home with only his staff, that is, all alone, and now was returning to it with two large camps. Then he offers his petition, that God would save him from the hand of Esau, whom he so greatly fears, believing he is coming to slay him and his family. He ends his prayer by pleading the divine promise.

The Meeting of the Brothers, Genesis 33:1-11. Jacob left the place he named Peniel (The Face of God), bearing in his halting gait the lasting mark of the night's struggle. Jacob appeared in the distance. Jacob approached with Oriental ceremony and bowed himself seven times to the ground, but Esau impulsively fell on Jacob's neck and kissed him. After much urging, Esau accepted Jacob's gifts and the brothers separated, Esau going to Seir and Jacob to Succoth.

From this time onward, though he does not lose his politic self-resourcefulness, Jacob becomes more and more a prince with God, a just and God-fearing Israelite.

HEALTH PLAN

A plan of action for the health of America is advocated by Dr. Martha M. Eliot, associate chief, U.S. Children's Bureau, in the current issue of Survey Graphic. Summing up her observations in England, Dr. Eliot applies the lessons of the British experience to this continent and declares:

"The urgency of the need today calls for:

—immediate action to stop withdrawal of physicians and nurses from areas already poorly provided or recently depleted, and the inauguration of a plan to give national recognition to those who stay at home to serve the workers and mothers and children, the aged, the infirm in our civilian population;

—a prompt review and plan for supplementing where needed, of the health and welfare personnel and medical facilities for care of maternity patients and children in all cities and towns and rural areas to which war industries or military establishments have brought or are still bringing large numbers of families or to which children might be sent in case evacuation of danger areas, became necessary;

—the immediate development of a plan for the establishment of day-care centres for children of mothers who must go to work in connection with the war effort;

—the establishment on an interstate basis of emergency mobile corps of child health and welfare personnel—physicians, nurses, nutritionists, child welfare workers, child guidance workers and non-professional aides to be available to supplement existing services in areas where war emergencies make such assistance necessary on more than an acute disaster basis;

—a nationwide campaign to immunize all children against diphtheria and smallpox and, as needed, against typhoid fever;

—a nationwide school lunch program;

—a nationwide program for training of child care volunteers to assist professional health and welfare workers and broaden the scope of their service in wartime and peacetime;

—the immediate institution of an effective school medical service that will provide thorough diagnostic examinations, the necessary medical care, child guidance and health instruction that will permit children and youth to take full advantage of educational opportunities, and fit them when they leave school to undertake work within their individual capacities;

—the extension of the provisions for maternity care and for health, medical and welfare services to children . . . until all areas of the country are adequately served."

"Nothing short of this will assure the nation that its children and youth of today will have the health and vigor necessary to carry forward in peacetime to come the work that must be done in establishing a true democracy for the citizens of tomorrow," concludes Dr. Eliot.

CHAPTER XXXVI

It will be a beautiful wedding, Tamar thought as she watched the florists arranging the banks of flowers against the fireplace. The tall white tapers in the candelabra, the white satin ribbon streamers marking off the places for the bride and groom and their attendants, the soft glow of the lamps that would presently be lighted—these things Selby must have.

Tamar had promised one last peek at the big drawing room before coming up to help Selby put on the white satin gown that she had already laid out. Tamar's own dress was of soft blue, with full sweeping skirt, tight basque and rows of tiny seed pearls about the sweetheart neck and peplum. On her black curls was perched a tiny blue hat, lavishly covered with peach colored flowers and veil that matched the color of the roses in her corsage.

Tamar paused for a moment to step through the swinging doors to the long dining room. All of the tradition of Sheridan weddings was being carried out.

Old Mammy Tootie stood by the table, white suit stiffly elegant, checking over the silver. The big urns and accessories stood on their polished trays; the crystal shone with fire, the snowy linen dropped into voluminous lengths to the floor about the glistening table.

Tamar could hear the servants moving about quietly in the kitchen, and the softly subdued chatter and confusion that marks preparation for an important event.

Pinecrest was having a wedding! The lawns were sans leaves, the long drives had been swept, the trailing vines caught back, the old trees bent their heads in waiting.

As she glanced out the hall window, Tamar saw a station wagon turn in at the drive. That would be the second cousins from Atlanta coming in on the 11 o'clock train. She ran for the stairs. Right now there were tears trembling on her lashes because everything was so beautiful, and because Selby would be leaving for Boston, and because—well just because.

Tamar hurried up to the room she had shared with Selby, which by this time would be one of wildest confusion. Missy would be standing about with her mouth full of pins, aching for an opportunity to pin up something—no matter what—or just obey one more command from her beloved mistress. Little Miss Abernathy, the seamstress, would be critically eyeing the handiwork of her old wrinkled hands; and Selby—Selby would be there only in the flesh.

Presently there would arrive the six other girls and the ushers—all laughing and dressed up in picturesque colors and severe black and white. Then there would be just time for a quick look at the arriving guests and then Lohengrin.

Selby was standing there glowingly radiant. "Tamar! Everything is perfect. Look at this gown—it couldn't be sweeter than if it had been 10 years in the making. Oh, Missy don't start crying again. There's nothing to cry about. I'd think you'd be glad to get rid of me!"

Selby pulled out a drawer. "Here, child, take this sweater and skirt for a present and run down like a good girl and ask mother if she can come up now."

The next hour the guests arrived, the principals of the ceremony were all there—excepting Christopher, the groom, and Dick, the best man. Tamar looked anxiously at her watch once more. Ten till 12. Oh dear, where can they be? she wondered. Thank goodness Selby didn't know yet that they hadn't come.

Tamar went down the back stairs and crept cautiously into the kitchen hall. "Missy," she whispered. "Ask Mr. Todd, Ranny—to come here." She watched through the crack in the doorway while Missy went up to the group in the conservatory where the attendants were chatting pleasantly. Missy whispered in Ranny's ear and he quickly left them. How handsome he looked as he crossed the room. His broad shoulders well back, his tall figure proud in its bearing.

As Ranny opened the door Tamar saw a long black limousine pass the window. "Oh, thank heaven!" she gasped. "There they are, Ranny. I was so afraid that something had happened. Get back to your duty." She gave him a quick smile and ran toward the stairs. "Wait—have the ring?"

"Safe as safe!" he patted an inner breast pocket. "Wait—Tamar! You look lovely. I—"

He stopped in adequately. This is just what Selby wants, Tamar thought as the minister began in a clear strong voice. Her back toward the sea of faces, friends of the Sheridans, beloved people of long years of close association. The air was sweet with the scent of roses and lilies of the valley.

Then it was over, and the bridegroom had kissed his bride, and now it was Tamar's turn to kiss Mrs. Christopher Sande.

Congratulations, best wishes, glimpses of the wedding gifts, the big game room upstairs, servants serving trays of frosted drinks. Selby cutting the wedding cake, with Christopher's hand on her to guide the knife down through the magnificence of white tiers.

"You are a beautiful bride, Selby," Tamar managed to whisper just before they hurried up to let Selby's mother help her with the going-away suit.

Then Selby was ready and she asked Tamar to run on downstairs as she could have one more minute with her mother and father. Tamar smiled at her and hurried along. "Is she coming?" asked some one quickly. Then the girls grouped themselves at the foot of the big stairway anxious for the bride's reappearance.

"Just time to get to the airport at Atlanta," said Dick methodically to the bridegroom, who stood with one foot on the first step.

Then Christopher went up them, two at a time, at the sound of an opening door above. Another moment and together they made the turn at the landing.

"The bridal bouquet, Mrs. Sande!" cried one of the girls.

Selby paused and leaned over the walnut rail. "Ready?"

"Tamar! Oh, Tamar!" some one cried enviously.

"Who else would I want to have my bouquet?" Selby whispered into Tamar's ear as she swept a good-bye kiss to her cheek.

Then the guests rushed pell-mell to the long verandah to throw rice and old shoes.

Tamar felt a hand on her arm. "I've got my car at the back door, and we can sneak away, Tam, so you won't see the last farewells. I'll take you down the old trail through the Sheridan's peach orchard."

Tamar silently squeezed Ranny's hand. Her eyes were ridiculously dimmed with tears and the bridal bouquet was pressed tightly in her arms.

It was good to feel Ranny's hand about hers as they ran swiftly so that they could get out of the drive and away to the old road before the limousine started up.

Ranny smiled at her engagingly. "It was tops, wasn't it?"

"Beautiful, Selby was the loveliest bride I ever saw," she said, remembering the high color on Selby's cheeks, the gold of her thick curls clustered about the veil. The catch in her throat at their parting was not quite so painful at this moment. Selby would be back for a visit soon even if Chris were through temporarily at the Cricket Hill. As soon as they started up operations again he was going to be needed.

Just briefly her thoughts touched upon the last month. But she could not allow any unpleasantness creep within them to mar the perfection of this day. It was all settled. Major Towne had forfeited the right to his lease and was now in a Federal prison. His man, Fettes, had confessed enough to make possible the capture of the other involved, and once more things were at peace at Sladwell.

Ranny turned the car back into the main highway as they left the orchard. They drove opposite the direction that Christopher and Selby would take. "We'd better put this robe about you," Ranny said, holding the wheel with one hand and reaching for the robe on the shelf above the seat.

"I'm too excited. I guess; for it doesn't seem cool."

They drove silently for a moment. "Light me a cigarette, will you, please?" he asked. She lit two, and they smoked thoughtfully.

"Gee! I've gone all soft inside," Ranny said, grinding out the ashes and the final spark.

He drove in between the two tall brownstone columns at Shadwell and up to the portico, but did not stop. Instead, he took the drive that led to the stables and out past the wood lot toward the Chestate.

Tamar did not speak. It hadn't yet occurred to her that she had left her wraps, her luggage and her father at Pinecrest.

Ranny drew the car up at the edge of the footpath that ran along the river. He slipped his arms out of his dinner jacket, lifted the robe from Tamar and held out the coat. She slipped her arms through its sleeves.

He got out of the car and went to her door and opened it. Taking her hand he led her to their favorite tree. She held the long blue skirt aside so that she would not step on its hem, walking softly over the browning moss and the rustling leaves.

Ranny led her to the wishing stone in their Fairy Ring of childhood days. He turned her about three times. "Make a wish, Tamar, and close your eyes."

She obeyed him, smiling as he began to count to 10 after the wish. The old ceremony. He stopped on eight. "Now, Miss Randolph, would it be taking too much for granted to ask you to hold them closed for 10 seconds?"

She felt his lips upon hers. It was much longer than 10 seconds. "Ranny," she whispered.

"Todd has the floor, Miss Randolph. Will you marry me?"

Tamar's eyes opened slowly. Their blue was the color of heaven above the Chestates. "Ranny," she said, solemnly. "That's the only wish I ever made on that darned stone that came true!"

SELECTED RECIPES

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

When the blueberries hang ripe on the bushes, people with a taste for good things to eat generally turn out a batch of blueberry muffins. Below is a recipe that tries a new stunt—add crisp shreds of bran to the batter for a delightful nut-like flavor.

All-Bran Blueberry Muffins
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup All-Bran
3 cups milk
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 cup fresh blueberries or huckleberries.

Cream shortening and sugar thoroughly, add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture with the berries and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 20 minutes.

Yield: 8 large muffins (3 inches in diameter) or 12 small muffins (2½ inches in diameter). Note: When sour milk or buttermilk is used instead of sweet milk, reduce baking powder to one teaspoon and add 1½ teaspoon soda.

SIMPLE EXERCISES HELP EASE ACHING FEET

Feet Affect The Figure Too
"Let me sit down!" gasps the woman with aching feet.

Even her oldest shoes haven't relieved the strain on her tortured foot muscles. Severe pain, a haggard expression and poor posture are the result.

Simple exercises for the feet would do wonders for her—enable her to step gaily along like her smartly shod companion.

Usually the metatarsal region in the ball of the foot is the first to give trouble. Undue pressure on this part strains the muscles that hold the bones in place. To strengthen your metatarsal region so it can "take it"—do this simple exercise.

Lay a towel on the floor and keeping feet pointed straight ahead, place toes on edge nearest you. Keep heels on floor and using gripping movements of the toes, pull towel back under the insteps. Repeat five to seven times.

With right exercises you can correct other body faults too—have a trim, young figure. Our 32-page booklet gives illustrated exercises to slim the waist, hips, legs to improve bust, shoulders and arms, to relieve foot and nerve troubles, constipation. Has exercises to improve posture, a daily routine for whole body.

NOT MANY SPECTATORS

When the town of Westwood, Mass., population 3,400, recently held a patriotic parade, so large a proportion of its residents marched that virtually the only spectators were a small group of Westwood's elderly people, the very youngest of its children and folks from out of town—and there weren't too many of them.

DIFFERENT OVER THERE

Some people, says the Ottawa Journal, worry about their tea ration. But in England there is hardly a night when at least a few German bombers are not overhead doing their devilish work. Here we can sleep safely in our beds. There, in a casual two-plane raid, a hospital was bombed and the streets of a coast town machine-gunned.

Elks Prove Themselves One Of Coleman's Most Charitable Organizations

Have Given Liberally to War
Charities As Well As Taking Care of Needy And Sick.

Each year Coleman Elks make one all-out effort to raise sufficient funds by which to aid them in contributing towards war and local charities. This year is no exception, and this week-end, Saturday and Monday, August 29 and 31, they will sponsor a carnival that will be bigger than ever.

The Kiddies Christmas Treat always ranks first on the Elks' list and the several hundred local kiddies are treated to a free show, fruit and confectionery. This costs close to $120. Any surplus confectionery is donated to The Salvation Army for its Christmas treat to Sunday school kiddies.

A survey of the town is made by a special committee at Christmas time in order that all needy families may be given a little good cheer in the form of well filled hampers. Each hamper costs the Elks $5.00 and 25 families were given hampers last Christmas. The Lord Mayor's Fund was sent a handsome donation of $126 last year and would alleviate in some small measure the suffering of a few of Britain's bombed out victims.

A Day in India With Sir Stafford Cripps

by Graham Spry

Sir Stafford Cripps began his day at about seven o'clock in the morning at 3 Queen Victoria Road in New Delhi. Breakfast was always arranged for eight o'clock. But by a quarter to eight he was dashing from room to room looking for his staff.

All of the staff except Professor R. Coupland lived in the private house set aside for the mission's use. The group Sir Stafford took with him by airplane from England consisted of F. F. Turnbull of the India Office, secretary to Colonel Amery, Secretary of State for India; and his own two personal assistants, A. D. K. Owen, economist and expert on social services, and myself, G. E. H. Palmer, M.P., one of Sir Stafford's parliamentary private secretaries, joined the mission a few days after its arrival in India. B. C. A. Cook of the Indian Civil Service completed the staff.

Breakfast was always on the wide veranda looking across rose gardens to King's Way, the broad central avenue of the capital of India. There the interviews and arrangements of the day were discussed interspersed with glances, all too hasty, at the morning newspapers. Sir Stafford would ask the five members of his staff to draft a cable, arrange an interview, look up some information, or do any of a dozen things which seemed to crowd in upon him at every moment.

After breakfast Sir Stafford worked on correspondence, wrote drafts of broadcasts or press statements, or between nine and ten a.m. held a press conference in the Secretariat, while his staff carried out the arrangements made at breakfast.

Almost every day he had an informal conference with his staff to discuss points in the proposals or to examine various formulae required in elaboration of the short-term aspects of the proposals. In these conferences Sir Stafford insisted that every one speak with complete freedom. He once remarked that he liked to take as much advice as possible! He believed committees were a good idea and had thorough confidence in them, so long as he could take the decision himself.

From nine-thirty or ten a.m. until a late hour at night, Sir Stafford interviewed leaders of the Indian political parties. He met his visitors on the steps of the archway where the cars or pony-carts arrived, and led them into the living-room where the negotiations were conducted. He invariably led his guests out after the interview and shook hands with them as they got into their cars or pony-carts or mounted their bicycles, as some actually did.

Visitors

He welcomed his visitors as friends. He knew personally most of the Indian representatives from long acquaintance, having met them either in London or on his tour through India in December, 1939, and January, 1940. The whole atmosphere of the interviews was one of friendliness and intimacy, and while negotiations always have an element of tenseness, there was no sense of combativeness at any stage.

If by any chance there were a few minutes between the interviews, which continued one after another throughout the day, Sir

Crows Nest Pass Musical festival was given a helping hand with a $10 donation it being the Elks' intention to help all worthy local endeavors. The Coleman Red Cross were the recipients of a $10 donation during their spring campaign. In order to make life a little more enjoyable for the British boys at Peace air school a donation was sent to that school's war services fund. In addition to the above, donations are given quietly to the needy without the fanfare of publicity.

While the carnival is the one effort by which the Elks hope to raise sufficient funds to help them during the year, they sponsor social evenings such as amateur shows etc. These in no way raise sufficient revenue to make them a money making proposition but they create interest among young music lovers and artists in the Pass towns and help train youngsters to perform in front of an audience.

Coleman is truly fortunate in having such an active organization in the community and the citizens will no doubt give them the support they so justly deserve by giving wholehearted support to the carnival.

Stafford sat down at his desk and wrote a few sentences of a dispatch or a speech. He began his April 11 broadcast in such snatches as early as April 1. When he works, Sir Stafford does not believe in tomorrow. Once he makes a decision he moves into action immediately.

The interviews nearly always upset Sir Stafford's plans to get away from the house for a few minutes of swimming at the Gyrkhana Club or the Viceroys' House. During the three weeks he was in New Delhi he managed to squeeze in only four or five swims. On those occasions he invariably grabbed a member of his staff, however busy, and brought him along.

One of his longest interviews was with Mohandas K. Gandhi, who wore his familiar loin cloth and arrived in a white motor car. Sir Stafford opened the door for him and followed him up the steps into the living room. Mr. Gandhi on his arrival, said to Sir Stafford, "At least we have this in common: we are both food faddists." With Sir Stafford, however, his vegetarian diet is not the result of any doctrinaire faith in carrots, but the result of an illness following his management of the largest explosives factory in the British Empire during the last war.

At luncheon Sir Stafford met Indian political leaders or officials. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and M. A. Jinnah he entertained at both breakfast and dinner.

No Latitude

In the evening at ten or ten-thirty, Sir Stafford went to the Viceroys' House to discuss the day's interviews, which were seldom fewer than ten, and not infrequently between twenty and thirty.

Despite his rule to be in bed before midnight, it was often one or two o'clock in the morning before Sir Stafford called it a day. Yet he never failed to be fresh. Two of his most obvious characteristics are vitality and patience.

I don't mind saying that I used to lie down briefly after lunch, and on one occasion was allowed to sleep through until seven o'clock. Sir Stafford never allowed himself any such latitude.

Beat The Gun

A veterinary surgeon was instructing a farmer as to a suitable method for administering medicine to a horse.

"Simply place this powder in a gas pipe about two feet long, put one end of the pipe well back in the horse's mouth and blow the powder down his throat."

Shortly thereafter the farmer came running into the veterinary's office in a distressed condition.

"What's the matter?" asked the veterinary.

"I'm dying," cried the farmer.

"The horse blew first."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Canada's Soldiers Show What Can Be Done

The gallant commando raid on Dieppe in which Canadians played a prominent part gives some valuable information on the resistance which may be encountered in establishing a second front in Europe, so long clamored for by arm-chair critics and "leagues for Democratic rights," whoever they may be. The war policies may well be left to those who have the responsibility on their shoulders of saying where men shall fight and when. An attacking force always will suffer far more heavily than a defending force, as all experience in warfare proves, therefore the casualties will be heavy when an invasion of Europe is attempted. The lists this week clearly prove this.

The Canadian troops in Britain have shown their mettle. Letters home to their folks in Canada have indicated that they preferred action in Europe to billets in Britain, and they have shown that they are willing and ready to tackle the Hun no matter what the odds are against them. Officers as well as men in the ranks figured heavily in the casualty lists, and Canadians at home thrill with pride at their exploits. They have done something which the Germans, with all their bragging of superiority as a military machine, have never attempted, to cross the channel and come to grips with the soldiers in England or any other part of the British Isles.

The fact that Canadian troops were given such an important part in the raid on Dieppe shows that the British high command has complete confidence in their ability to meet the enemy. Again Canada as a nation thrills with pride that its new generation of soldiers has maintained the standard and reputation of the Canadians who fought in Great War 1, at Vimy, Paschendaele, and many another bloody battlefield.

Finance Minister Hits Out

Hon. J. L. Isley, Federal minister of finance, said a mouthful this week which was coming to those who have created misgiving in people's mind, to the effect that Canada would not redeem its obligations to those who had invested in war bonds or war savings certificates. We have heard considerable of this vicious talk in Alberta, and Mr. Isley's words will meet with warm approval by the great majority of Canadians who will spare no effort to back up those who are charged with the responsibility of carrying on the war. People who have been damaging the war effort and the country's finances by spreading malicious falsehoods about government fiscal policies "are liars, falsifiers and saboteurs." They have said that the government would not redeem war savings certificates; that bank deposits would be frozen, and that 25 per cent of all savings would be taken by the government. The Dominion government has always honored its obligations and now has a greater incentive than ever before to do so because of the large number of Canadian bondholders.

It is time that a minister of the Federal government spoke plainly to those who in critical times such as these try and create mistrust by talking and spreading propaganda on fanciful theories which instead of contributing to the war effort, create mistrust and take advantage of existing conditions not only to embarrass the government but to fly their own petty political kites.

Reserve Army Needs Recruits

This corner of southwestern Alberta has seen quite a large quota of men volunteer for the active army, and many are overseas. Yet Canada needs a home defence force, despite the impression in the minds of some that invasion may never be experienced in Canada. There have been many surprises in this war, and often it is the unexpected that happens. There are many reasons why Canada needs a home defence army, composed of those who through physical disability or age are not eligible for the active army. It must be remembered that Canada is not solidly British; there are many people within our borders whose national pride in Canada is very shallow. Judging from their indifference it matters little to them, so they think, if the Allied Nations or Germany wins this war.

The coast line of British Columbia is quite vulnerable and it is within the bounds of possibility that surprises may happen there. The rapidity with which bases have been established on the western coast and in Alaska shows that the danger from attack is fully recognized. The war in its principal phases is being fought far distant from our shores, and it is to be hoped that it will continue so. But with most of our young men overseas, there remains for home defence older men who though perhaps not being able to stand the rigors of active campaigning can render useful service.

The meeting held in Macleod on Tuesday night to arouse interest in the 93rd Battery as a unit in the home defence forces heard some very plain talking from Major Roberts, a veteran soldier of 30 years service. Throughout this part of Alberta his address should serve to re-awaken keen interest in the effort to build up the 93rd Battery, and recruits should come forward from every town in the district from Macleod west to Crows Nest. In the Pass towns there are several loyal citizens who have given time and money in arousing interest in the former 15th Light Horse, now merged with the 93rd Battery. Several of them were here at Tuesday's meeting, and their efforts should receive encouragement and support from all citizens.

BUS MILEAGE IS REDUCED

According to W. T. Aiken, secretary of the Alberta Highway Traffic Board, recent orders suspending bus mileage in the province will result in a decrease approximating 27%. The average mileage for the province is 4,270,604 miles and this would be reduced by 1,190,197 miles. Initial action in this respective movement was started by the Dominion Transit Controller who ordered minimum reductions of at least 25%. The Alberta government has sought and received co-operation from the bus companies, who have voluntarily reduced their mileage and helped eliminate duplication.

BREAD helps to keep Canadians healthy

CANADA'S HEALTH RECORD is high among the nations of the world. And bread, more than any other single item on the Dominion's diet, has helped to achieve this.

Bread is not only a valuable source of carbohydrates. Made with milk, as it usually is today, bread is also an important source of protein, equal to meat in its power to build and repair muscular energy.

Bread should and does supply one-quarter of the food energy of Canadians. Eat several slices every day and keep fit!

Running London In Wartime

(by Lord Latham)

The war has brought surprises for every one. I doubt whether any of those who were at the first meeting of the London County Council over fifty years ago ever dreamed that the Council would one day help to feed the people of London.

The Council is the main organization behind the daily life of 4,000,000 people. It educates their children; it looks after their sick, blind, poor! it houses four hundred thousand of them. In fact it is the largest local authority in the world, spending a greater sum of money in any year than was spent by the treasuries of a good many independent countries. It cannot resign or go out of business. Even if its buildings and offices and hospitals were bombed to pieces, it would still have to carry on, because it is not a business. It is a service.

The Council now has special wartime jobs. It runs the Londoners' Meals Service to see that Londoners get hot meals whatever happens. It is serving nearly 400,000 meals a week in over 200 centers set up all over London wherever they are needed. It tries to give a square meal for as reasonable a charge as possible.

Potato Crop

The Council is itself a large producer of food. In addition to growing big crops of potatoes in its parks, and tons of tomatoes and lettuce in its greenhouses, the Council farms about 6,000 acres in Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey. London's parks are also helping in the "Dig for Victory" campaign. Over 13,000 Londoners have allotments in the Council's parks and open spaces.

In peacetime the Council provided 71,000 beds in ninety-six hospitals. Today the hospitals are carrying a double load. In addition to the ordinary sick, the raid casualties have to be provided for, and job has often had to be done under fire.

Throughout the periods of the heavy raids, the one aim of the hospital staffs—doctors, nurses, engineers and porters—has been to carry on and insure the safety of the patients. Every one of the London County Council hospitals in London has had its air-raid incident, sometimes one following after the other. One hospital, for instance, was bombed four times over a period of two months. Twice it had to be cleared of patients, but it was never knocked out.

At the moment of writing there are no people in our Rest Centers set up for those who may be bombed out of their homes. Of course I feel about this just the opposite to what an hotel manager would feel if his hotel were empty. The Rest Center Service took the load of the heavy raids very well, and no matter how bad the Blitz, no bombed-out Londoner was ever turned away.

And then there are the ambulance and rescue service. The men of the rescue squads are always ready to give a hand to an urgent job. They spend part of their time in study, and some of them join classes. They and the ambulance workers have allotments and keep poultry and rabbits at their stations. There is one ambulance station in the East End, surrounded by slums and blitzed buildings, which has some of the finest chickens you could see.

Tidily Cleared Up

Most people who come to London are interested to see the bomb damage. This is not morbidly, but a genuine wish to see how London has "taken it." For the few morbid ones there is disappointment, for a great many of the bombed sites are now tidily cleared up, and there is literally nothing to see. The lull in raiding has helped us to catch up with the work, but there have been times during the Blitz when it has been of vital importance to get a particular clearance job done quickly. After the heavy raid of May last year, for instance, some of the main east-to-west roads through the City of London were blocked. The men put their backs into it, demolished the dangerous buildings and cleared away the debris. Within nine days these important traffic routes were open again.

Where does all the debris go? It's hitting back at the enemy. Millions of bricks have gone to build war factories and water basins for beating Firebomb Fritz. Thousands of tons of iron and steel have gone into munitions. Many of the R.A.F. planes which bomb Germany take off from runways made partly from London debris. There is hardly anything which cannot be put to some use. Many thousands of tons of rubble are being dumped on the London County Council's open spaces at Hackney Marsh to raise the level and prevent it from being flooded at times. Thus the Battle of London has helped to win a new playing field for future generations of Londoners.

Recreation

And what about the recreation of Londoners? Football, cricket, tennis, swimming, boating—these are the things they enjoy. Although a fair amount of space in our parks has been given over to the Services, we have kept these things going as far as possible.

What Londoners have enjoyed perhaps most of all has been the open-air dancing around the bandstands in the parks. Four corners of London's East End—Bethnal Green, Bow, Hackney and Poplar—meet at Victoria Park. It is the playground of the East End. There is always a good sprinkling of khaki and Air Force blue among the dancers. The raids did not stop the evening bands and concert parties in our parks, and once the pilot of a Messerschmitt who had bailed out landed nearby almost in time for the first item on the program.

In wartime a big organization like the London County Council is up against a double problem. We must carry on our ordinary services in specially difficult conditions—you might almost call them front-line conditions—and also do a great many extra things we were never meant to do, things our predecessors never contemplated.

It is our business to provide schools—elementary, central and secondary schools. We must go on providing them even though we feel very strongly that London in wartime is not the place for children. This has not been easy. Some of our buildings have been taken over for civil defense, and some have been damaged or destroyed in the raids. But we have done it.

We have evacuated over 650,000 of London's school children to the country. In many cases their teachers have gone with them. We don't hear much about these teachers; they are not front-page news. But many of them have made real sacrifices, have given up their homes and settled down in billets in a strange place so that the children's education should continue.

"Business as usual" has become a very much discredited slogan in this war. This is a healthy sign. But in the case of a public authority such as the London County Council, which provides for so many of the needs of those who live or work in London, business as usual must continue in wartime to be very much the rule, and not the exception.

MAXIMUM CHARGE ON TRUCK TRANSPORT

Truckers moving grain for farmers will charge the prices established in the basic period last fall, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces. Such prices will apply as the maximum for this season. Also, owing to a very limited amount of new equipment available, farmers will have to use whatever trucks they own to transport grain to the elevators. New equipment is only obtainable through special permit from the Motor Vehicle Controller, who must be satisfied that it is to be used only for essential purposes, and that satisfactory used equipment is not otherwise available.

A Vital Canadian Industry

IN A BOOK ISSUED RECENTLY by the joint board of the Newspaper Association of Canada and the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association some highly interesting facts are given concerning this important industry. It may surprise many Canadians to know that our forests provide us with an industry which exceeds by far that of any other in the Dominion, and which might be called a mainstay of our economic structure. As a source of foreign exchange it ranks next to gold, and is greater than that of copper, wheat and nickel combined. At the present time, it is bringing to Canada annually over a quarter of a billion dollars from the marketing of its products in other lands. The industry is said to affect almost every branch of Canadian endeavor and it has had a great influence on the development of other industries including farming, mining, and transportation. No other undertaking has contributed so much to the extension of hydro-electric power in Canada.

Half a million Canadian citizens depend directly on the pulp and paper industry for their living. No other manufacturing industry pays out as much in salaries and wages and its invested capital is the largest of any industry in the Dominion. Between 1929 and 1930, which were depression years, the pulp and paper industry brought to Canada $363,000,000. In those same years, the return from gold export was $175,000,000, and from nickel $130,000,000. In 1939 there were 99 pulp and paper plants in Canada. The people employed in this industry numbered nearly 10,000, and the total wages paid amounted to $12,619,311. With the added activity of the industry in wartime all these figures are now considerably increased.

Both for peace and wartime requirements the industry contributes much to our vital daily needs. In civilian life we draw from it newspaper, book, writing, and wrapping paper and many building products. To the materials of war it contributes a great deal. It is used in the production of explosives, in shells, in land and navy mines, in parts of airplanes and mechanized equipment of barracks, war plants and camps. The construction of one battleship requires 15 tons of paper, including that used for the vast number of minute drawings involved in the construction of its guns and equipment. From these facts we are again impressed with the great contribution made by our forests to the national economy. It is clear that our forest lands are an asset to be guarded with care, and that the pulp and paper industry is one that should be supported and maintained as one of our foremost national enterprises.

Fruits - Good To Eat - And Good For You

We are lucky people in this country. We have fruit to eat the year around, fresh, canned or dried. All fruits give us minerals and vitamins.

The High Rankers For Vitamin C—
Some fruits have more vitamin C than others.
They rank: First—Oranges and grapefruit.
Second—Canned or fresh tomatoes.
Third—Canned pineapple.

Note: Canned grapefruit and the juice have almost as much vitamin C as the fresh fruit and at times are cheaper.

How Much Fruit Do We Need?
Eat one high ranker every day, plus one other kind of fruit. For example, add apples, prunes, or figs.

Your Money Goes Farther If You Buy—
Small "juice" oranges instead of bigger ones.
Canned grapefruit or grapefruit juice instead of fresh.
Tomato juice in large cans.
Small prunes instead of big ones.

Fruits Will Taste Better And Be Safer If You—
Keep all fruit and fruit juice in a cold place and cover the fruit juices.
Wash fresh fruits before eating.
Wash dried fruits, soak, and cook in same water.

Do You Know That—
Dried fruits in bulk are cheap and taste good.
(Sweet prunes do not need extra sugar.)
Mixed dried fruits can be bought in bulk?
(Smaller pieces but as good flavor.)
The Rhubarb in season or soaked dried fruit can replace apples in Brown Betty? (Try it with prunes or apricots.)
Best apple sauce is made from unpared apples?
(Better flavor and better color.)

FAVORITE RECIPES—APPLE BROWN BETTY

- 9 1/2-inch-thick slices bread.
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 cups thinly sliced apples (4 to 5 apples)
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon

Remove crusts from bread, cut in small cubes and saute in butter, until evenly browned. Mix apples with sugar and cinnamon. Arrange alternate layers of bread and apples in greased pudding dish. Cover and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Uncover and bake until brown about 15 minutes longer. Serve hot with top milk or sauce. Yield: 6 servings.

STEAMED DRIED APRICOTS

Wash dried apricots and soak until plump in just enough water to cover. Cover and simmer in same water about 20 minutes until fruit is soft. Add sugar to taste and until dissolved. Cool covered, to obtain thick syrup.

The Weekly Newspaper

Plays Very Important Part In Life Of Canada

The weekly newspaper now is "the real focus of local loyalty along with the church and the school." Dr. James S. Thomson, president of the University of Saskatchewan, told delegates to the convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at Saskatoon.

"With the growth of urban life our civilization has largely deteriorated," Dr. Thomson said. "We must look to the rural areas and the small towns for fresh streams of new life to cleanse our common life, therefore the rural church, the rural school and the small paper have an enormously important part to play in the shaping of the future."

Dr. Thomson said the war has brought a new and fundamental encounter with the basic questions of human existence. "We can no longer deal with these problems by the method of appeasement—the long conspiracy of indifference must be broken and the time for any superficial views in education had come to an end."

"We must go forward but our success depends on a new sense of life's values, such as are provided by religion."

"The churches of North America have agreed on a general advance, using the methods of education. There is a new evidence of co-operation in this venture by the taking of religious teaching into our school system. That amounts to a revolutionary change in North American life."

"But the churches realize also that all that launches life is education. Chief among these influences is the press."

Polio Precautions

Fly Is Branded As Carrier Of This Dread Disease

Recent research tends to prove that one means by which infantile paralysis is spread far and wide is the common house fly. Long suspected of being connected in some way with the spread of this deadly disease, the fly is branded a carrier by investigators at the University of Cincinnati and Yale.

Last summer, during polio outbreaks, thousands of flies were trapped in the danger areas. Solutions made from these were given to monkeys in feedings or injections. Down came the monkeys with polio.

As a result of parallel investigations by the Ontario Department of Health, Dr. John T. Blair, chief medical officer says: "We have found polio virus, which was still highly potent, four months after we had collected the flies, killed and preserved them."

In reviewing what is now known about the method of spread of poliomyelitis, Harold J. Kirby, Ontario Minister of Health, points out that the disease may result from contact with those actually suffering from it; from contact with carriers who probably never had the disease; and by exposure to the excretions of both polio cases and carriers. This exposure may be either direct, or through the medium of contaminated water or flies.

In the event of poliomyelitis occurring in any community, Health Minister Kirby advises the following procedure: Keep all children away from crowds; wash fruits, tomatoes and uncooked vegetables before serving; boil all water which is not adequately chlorinated and all milk which is not pasteurized; caution against bathing or swimming in contaminated water; destroy all flies.

Large sums of money and competent research specialists have been devoted to make insecticides efficient fly killers. For example, scientists of the Mellon Research Foundation were employed to perfect Fly-Tox. Insecticides act on the principle that flies breathe through pores in their bodies. A fine mist of the chemical is blown into the air by means of a sprayer and kills every fly it touches. Science, in some cases such as Fly-Tox, has succeeded in making the insecticide odorless and harmless to humans, and proof against staining wallpaper and fine fabrics.

But the main fact to remember if these late findings regarding flies and polio are correct, is kill that fly. Kill him by whatever means you wish as long as you do kill him.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.
By Alan Maurice Irvin

"What, more drill?" You've probably heard your friends in the Services grumble about drill. I've done it myself. And I've joined in arguments in which John Citizens have held forth on the subject.

In the early days of this new war I found myself lending a ready ear to complaints that "Bow and arrow soldiers" were wasting the boys' time with a lot of "harrack-squary stuff." And for quite a long time, although for its precision and snapshiners I like drill, I was inclined to subscribe to the opinion that a lot of it was wasted time, and to label myself a "bow and arrow soldier."

Two weeks ago, when I was first introduced to the new "battle drill," I began to see the light. I suppose the reason for that was because I had to convince Reserve Army recruits that there is a reason for the drill to which so much of their early army life is devoted.

In order to supply myself with good reasons to pass along I had to think about the subject considerably more than I had previously and, as is so often the case, the whole thing fell into a pattern.

Until then my sole excuse for drill had been that it is necessary in the early days of a soldier's training to teach him that he is part of a group and that the group is not capable of functioning as a unit until it has become integrated through constant practice. In addition, of course, there is the fact that a body of men marching under complete discipline will move with less fatigue than a similar body walking at random.

I hadn't thought of the origin of the drill or the underlying reasons for its institution. And I probably wouldn't have puzzled that out for myself yet if it hadn't been necessary for me to study the "battle drill" that is now a part of army training.

There have been one or two articles about Battle Drill written in England and published in "Canadian papers. One of them, by Captain Kin Beattie, Toronto newspaperman, who is now Press Liaison Officer at Corps Headquarters, emphasized that it had been received with enthusiasm by the Canadians, but did not go into much detail about the drill itself.

Two reasons for this lack of detail could be that a written description of a drill is a pretty dull subject or that for security reasons no details of the drill are to be made public.

For either or both of these reasons this column will content itself with saying that Battle Drill is a series of exercises designed to make good battle field habits instinctive and that the drill, which can be carried out literally anywhere, is practical and does just what is intended.

Introduction to Battle Drill gave me a shock and brought the realization that "drill" actually can have a goal, that its purpose is not necessarily as abstract as I had thought.

From that shock came the reasoning that "harrack-square soldiering" probably had its origin in something equally useful in the days "away back when."

Now, this is mere supposition, why could not the origin of "form platoon" have been for the purpose of teaching soldiers how to form squares rapidly and instinctively in the days when the "square" was the unit of battle formation?

You remember those gaily-coloured chromes of British infantrymen in battle don't you? The front rank knelt and with its fixed bayonets formed a sort of "cheval de frise" for the protection of the rear rank which stood with muskets poised ready to mow down attackers by volleys.

It is easy enough to picture the troops marching to battle in columns of fours and to imagine the command, "at the halt on the left, form half company." Forming two deep as they carried out the order, the leading group would then be in position to meet a cavalry charge.

It sounds reasonable, doesn't it? And at that time the drill would have had as much to recommend it as Battle Drill has today.

Off the battle field it is still necessary to have drill movements for the orderly handling of troops, and for soldiers of the Individual Citizen's Army drill it uses too.

Drill for civilians? Sure! We've all been drilling ever since gasoline was rationed. That particular drill didn't affect us all, but the next one did.

That's right! Sugar! But even more important than the absolute rationing of sugar announced May 28 was the voluntary rationing of tea and coffee we were asked to carry out.

It was a drill, a drill to train us for the battle field when absolute rationing of tea and coffee should come. How seriously we took that drill governs our fitness to "take it" now that we have no choice.

The soldier or sailor or airman expects to be given orders that will coordinate individuals so that they can carry out a joint job.

We soldiers behind the lines will have more and sterner orders to obey before this job is done—let's do our drill cheerfully and be ready for what is to come.

Weekly Newspapers Are Carrying On With Reduced Staff

The Amherstburg, Ont., Echo says: The war is making serious inroads on the staffs of weekly newspapers and we doubt, if there is a paper in Ontario, that is not trying to get along with a greatly reduced staff. The situation is getting more acute every day. This will mean smaller papers and a condensation of news if the newspapers are to continue. It would be a shame if any great number of weekly newspapers were forced to suspend publication due to lack of help and patronage. It is the duty of every merchant and citizen to lend a hand through advertising patronage or otherwise to see that such a condition will not come to pass.

PERMITS ARE BEING ISSUED FOR EXPORT OF BARLEY, OATS, AND RYE GROWN ON PRAIRIES

Ottawa.—The agricultural supplies board announced that, effective at once, permits will be issued for export of western-grown barley, oats and rye.

The free granting of permits will apply only to the crop produced in areas where the Dominion freight assistance policy does not apply, thus confining the arrangement to prairie production. The freight assistance policy applies to eastern provinces and British Columbia, which are assisted in bringing in supplies of prairie grains for feed purposes.

All permits issued must be made use of before Nov. 30, the announcement said.

The Canadian wheat board has undertaken responsibility of approving all permits, before they are accepted by the export permit branch of the trade and commerce department which exercises control over export of commodities which may be required for home needs.

Announcement of the freer shipments which will go mainly to the United States was looked upon as a logical step in the dovetailed agricultural program of Canada and the United States.

Outlining the agricultural program for this year in a speech in the House of Commons on last March 9, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said an increase in production of coarse grains and flax was required in Canada this year. The Japanese attacks in the Far East had cut off vegetable oil supplies and, as a result the Dominion, the United Kingdom and the United States suffered a shortage of such oils.

The appeal had been made to Canada to produce animal fats since it is difficult to produce vegetable oils on Canadian soil. More animal fats could best be produced by increasing the output of hogs, dairy products and beef, while flax was a Canadian crop which provides valuable quantities of vegetable oils.

Proposal Has Been Received From Moslems

New Delhi.—The working committee of the Moslem league issued a resolution declaring it will consider any proposal for establishment of a provisional government in India, but at the same time warning that Moslems will resist attempts from any quarter to interfere with their peaceful occupations.

The resolution was approved by the committee after several days discussion, during which it underwent modifications. It said the league would be willing to negotiate with any other political parties provided Moslem insistence on the principle of Pakistan—separate Moslem and Hindu states—is recognized.

The league called upon the British government to issue an unequivocal declaration guaranteeing Moslem rights to self-determination.

Bombay.—Reports of serious looting and arson by large mobs of Congress demonstrators came from the Madras presidency. A communique reported a mob of 3,000 persons attacked the police station in the west Godavari district and looted houses. Police were forced to fire on demonstrators at Bhimavaram.

CLOSE CHECK-UP

Shows Excess Sugar Has Been Purchased For Canning Purposes

Vancouver.—Questionnaire from the ration division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board noting purchases of stated amounts of sugar for canning purposes and asking when inspectors of the ration division may call have been sent to many Vancouver households, it was learned.

A spokesman for the Vancouver office of the board said "There is no doubt that some women have been chiselling sugar for purposes other than canning," and that several infractions had been disclosed through similar check-ups in other parts of Canada.

Halifax.—Thieves in Halifax know what is valuable in these days of rationing. Breaking into the store of Mrs. George M. Keating here they took nothing but a 100-pound bag of sugar.

HOSTAGES HELD

Brazil Not Allowing German Nationals To Leave Country

Rio De Janeiro.—All Germans except diplomats who had embarked on the exchange ships Eage and Cybna were ordered held as hostages by President Getulio Vargas shortly after the sinking of the sixth Brazilian ship in recent days was announced.

The ships already were filled with German nationals, ready to sail for Lisbon in exchange for Brazilian nationals. The voyages had been postponed when a crisis arose over the sinking of five Brazilian ships by Axis submarines, claiming the lives of perhaps 600 persons including Brazilian troops.

ARMY IS GROWING

Hundreds Of Croat Schoolboys Joining The Yugoslav Guerrillas

London.—The Italians are using cruel methods in an effort to stamp out the Yugoslav guerrillas, but still the secret army grows.

Jugoslav sources say that Italian planes have bombed or burned to the ground 11 towns in Croatia and Dalmatia. One thousand men from one city were taken as hostages. But yet, hundreds of Croat school boys are fleeing to the mountains to join the forces fighting against the aggressors.

LOSSES HEAVY

In Two Months British Took 10,000 Axis Prisoners In Egypt

Cairo.—A farewell message to the British soldiers from Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck announced that in the last two months in Egypt Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has lost 10,000 Axis troops in prisoners alone. "In the last two weeks," the retiring Middle East commander told his forces, "you have stopped the enemy and forced him on the defensive."

The Egyptian battlefield remained quiet as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander took up his new job as Britain's Middle East commander and as newly-arrived United States troops bolstered the Allied reserves for the next phase of the fight.

FUEL PROBLEM

Signs Of Early Winter In Europe Causing Widespread Concern
Bern, Switzerland.—Signs of an unusually early winter have been reported from central and northern Europe, giving rise to widespread concern over the continent's inadequate fuel supplies.

An early winter, it was pointed out, also would have a direct bearing on military campaigns. Along northern sectors of the east front early freezing would be a substantial aid to the Russians.

Newspapers reaching here brought reports of early frosts in villages of northern Sweden. In the region of Taasjoe, potato plants were nipped by frost and the growth of grain was retarded. In the province of Jamtland a Stockholm despatch stated, extensive damage was done to crops by snow.

McNaughton Says United Nations Will Strike Again And Again

Somewhere in England.—Commenting on the Dieppe raid, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. He is Lieut. H. K. Robinson, 28, of Montreal, but he does not appear in the picture.

Honored By Poland

In recognition of "distinguished service to the Polish Air Force" Hon. C. G. Power, M.C., minister of national defence for air, and a group of high officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Air Force were presented with pilots' wings of the Polish Air Force in a ceremony in Ottawa (Aug. 7). The presentation was made by Group Captain S. Smuk, head of the Polish Military Mission to Canada. The badge, a silver eagle in flight, suspended from a silver chain, is being pinned on (above) Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, D.S.C., chief of the air staff, R.C.A.F.

WESTERN WHEAT PURCHASED FOR FEED WILL BE SUBJECT TO EIGHT CENT DRAWBACK

Ottawa.—A joint announcement by the wartime prices and trade board and the agricultural supplies board said that a drawback of eight cents a bushel will be paid on western wheat purchased for feed on and after Aug. 1, to permit the July prices on feeds containing wheat to be maintained.

The wheat price paid the western farmer by the Canadian wheat board has been increased from 70 cents to 91 cents a bushel basis No. 1 northern, the higher price becoming effective with the opening of the 1942-43 crop year Aug. 1.

The announcement said the drawback would be paid "until further notice."

The drawback on wheat for feed "is made necessary by the higher prices now prevailing for western wheat, and will enable feed dealers, processors and mixers to maintain July prices on sales of their feed products containing wheat," said the joint announcement.

The required funds to cover the drawback costs will be provided by the federal treasury through special arrangements with the agricultural supplies board.

F. W. Present, feeds administrator, will set up the machinery to administer payments.

In areas in which the government freight assistance policy for feed now operates, claims for the drawback will be made along with freight assistance claims. For the prairie provinces, it is proposed to deal with the drawback through an office in western Canada.

The freight assistance policy applies to shipments of feed grown on the prairies and moved to eastern Canada and British Columbia.

The amount of feed wheat on which the drawback will be paid could not be indicated closely, officials said. In the last crop year an estimated 60,000,000 bushels of wheat was fed to animals on the farm.

At the moment there was a question of whether feeding of wheat to hogs and cattle would continue on the scale of last year or whether the enlarged production of coarse grains would curtail its use.

It was evident that a large proportion of the wheat fed on farms, especially in the west, was produced by the farmer himself and had not been purchased. Therefore, he would not benefit under the drawback provisions.

Under the government free freight policy, about 8,000,000 bushels of western wheat were moved to the eastern provinces in the last crop year. It was anticipated that wheat thus shipped for feed outside the prairies would represent a substantial part of the grain on which the drawback would be paid.

Japan Agrees To Give Safe Passage To Another Liner

Vancouver.—F. P. Bernard, honorary vice-consul for Spain, said here Japan has agreed to give safe passage to another liner exchanging war prisoners and "it is probable some of the Japanese living in Canada and some of the Canadians now in Japan will soon see their homelands again."

Mr. Bernard represents the "protecting power" for Japan's interests in Canada and has worked closely with the British Columbia Security commission in the evacuation of Japanese from the coastal zone.

"To me the Japanese seem to be making the best of their uncomfortable situation," he said in commenting on the evacuation. "Comments directed to me have usually been minor and few."

MAY BE PRISONER

London.—Earl Haig, 24, son of the British commander-in-chief of the First Great War, is missing and believed to be a war prisoner in the Middle East, his sisters have been informed. He joined the Scots Greys in August, 1939.

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King cabled Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander-in-chief of the Canadian army overseas, that the people of Canada shared with the Canadian troops raiding Dieppe "the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike a telling blow at a Nazi stronghold."

He asked Gen. McNaughton to convey to the officers and men taking part in the raid "the expression of our deep admiration of their memorable exploit."

The text of Mr. King's cable follows:

"Al! Canada has been deeply stirred by the account of the raid on Dieppe. We were proud to learn that Canadian troops had been given a foremost place in the operation. The courage and determination shown by the men of Canada's army was no surprise. We all knew there were no finer disciplined or more resolute men in any fighting forces. We were delighted to know that in the magnificent support given by the navy and air force there were large numbers of our own air force."

"Through the long hard months of training and waiting for action, the people at home have shared the impatience of our soldiers, and we shared with them the satisfaction of their opportunity to strike a telling blow at a Nazi stronghold."

"Our hearts are filled with sympathy for the families of those who fell in action, and for the wounded and missing. Their sacrifice has strengthened the country's determination to give the utmost support to our fighting men on land, at sea and in the air."

"Will you convey, on behalf of the government and the people of Canada, to the officers and men who participated in the operation the expression of our deep admiration of their memorable exploit."
